COMMENT:

D7 has the following comments for index 330-001:

1. Sheet 1 of 2 Diagram uses the same R/W line (Key --- --- ---) for both the FDOT R/W and the local entity R/W which can create confusion over maintenance responsibility.
2. The exhibit 330-001 sheet 1 of 2 should depict the “point of connection” in reference to end terminal of FDOT R/W; to ensure maintenance responsibilities of DOT are clearly defined (to the R/W Line)
3. Please define Turn-out verses Driveway (include in the index).

RESPONSE:

The Standard Plans is not the location to be explaining the responsibilities of Maintenance. Rule 14-96 should explain the responsibilities for maintenance. The Indexes are intended for Construction and that may not always occur to the R/W.

As for Comment #3, there is no formal definition or description currently included in any FDOT documents and it is hard to get any concurrence that there is a difference. That will change somewhat with a new “Driveways” chapter being added to the FDOT Design Manual (FDM, Chapter 214). Based on our review of historical documents, it appears the term “turnout” just refers to the portion of the driveway constructed or maintained by the Department.
