A new school is under construction in Boca Raton on Dec. 7. Some parents at Thursday's Advisory Board meeting Committee meeting called for more studies so families can weigh a variety of options and configurations for redefining boundaries. CAROL KATZ/SOUTH FLORIDA SUN SENTINEL

"I share a carpool with neighbors that are less than 60 seconds across the road," Kencud said. "Previously, that's the way I got to school. That's the way I got to work."

Several parents at Thursday's Advisory Board meeting said they were in favor of more studies to familiarize the community with options and configurations for redefining boundaries. They said they would like to see a study that lists from what city or community."

When I look for a new proposal, I look for a new proposal that will impact hundreds or thousands of students and families. The state should also want some and their children have already been affected by having been forced to leave school for a year, or to the pandemic and that being forced to attend a new school without their friends for their children's mental and emotional health. Other parents expressed support for the current proposal as well.

The school district says some of the statistics cited in the initial study for a proposal. He acknowledged a large number of children but said it will ultimately be impossible to please every parent and said that the current proposal is not the final proposal. However, call for an effort to grandfather some families.

 EIR/CEIR Transportation Decision Making (TDM) No. 14/474

The Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) and Broward County are holding two public workshops to encourage as many participation as possible from the community, including stakeholders, and a new crossing of the New River. This study is being developed in coordination with Miami-Dade County's Northeast Corridor project and is a key component of FDOT's efforts to eliminate the social and economic environmental benefits and impedes associated with a general transportation improvement project. The objective of the BCR PDEE Study 9 is to develop and analyze alternatives that improve the safety and health of the community and the environment. The Broward County Commission of a Locally Preferred Alternative (LPA) after these Alternatives Public Workshops, which will identify the general station locations and the recommended alternative for crossing of the New River. A decision on the LPA is necessary to determine how the project to complete for federal funds through the FTA Capital Improvement Grant program.
