Response to Morgan Kraan

Response:

The designer should be able to give a reasonable Square Yard (square meter) measurement for this item therefore making it a plan quantity item would be beneficial to everyone concerned. If the error met the requirements of a plan error then an adjustment would be made. This item also does not require a unit price adjustment. It does require a bituminous adjustment as specified in article 9 of the specifications and this is why we require the certification of quantities only for the bituminous material placed underneath the Asphalt Rubber Membrane Interlayer. We do not require a certification of quantities for the square yards (square meters).
