Please see the e-mail below from Frances Thomas on March 5th, 2012. She previously stated that the 555 specification was being further revised for January 2013 to address issues related to what is included in the payment of the the directional bore item. Is this no longer being done? (text from Frances Thomas email):

Just to let you know – A group of us from Construction, Utilities, Estimates, Design and Specs are working on revising Directional Bore, Jack and Bore and Conduit for January 2013. The changes will go out for Industry Review.

Until then, payment will be made in accordance with the current specifications. The Directional Bore item includes the cost of the bore and the “bundle” (whatever is pulled back, no matter the quantity of “pipes”). Whatever is used to populate the “bundle” (i.e., conductor, etc.) will be paid under separate items.

Jack and bore includes the bore and the casing.
